

Gardinnia—Bricks’ Intro (7)

Rick Bringham © 2023

Dear Reader,

Welcome to Gardinnia—sort of.
Welcome in word.

My name is Ron Brickman.
Most people call me “Bricks.”

There are thousands of Gardinnian stories.
Max, whom you will soon meet, is one example.
We chose Max because of the nature of his distortions.

We capitalize the words we use for Inventions and Principles.
For example, Hair Helmets are for hair care.
Autonomy Codifies the respecting of Choice.
Capitalizing can, at first, distract, but most find that it, ultimately, highlights the Best of us.

In Gardinnia we often use a writing style that we call “Poetics.”
This does not mean that we are always writing poetry.
The style refers to the line lengths, not necessarily the content.
On the page this style looks like stanzas.
We find that this style is easier to edit.
We also find that concepts are more easily seen and received.
The writing, however, may, occasionally, actually, be a poem.
Usually, it is not.

By the end of the book, you’ll know how to find Gardinnia.
Entering Gardinnia is simple, but not easy.
It is quickly found by some.
Difficult to find by others.
Some never find us.

We hope you enjoy your visit in word.
We hope one day you’ll visit us in person.

Very Sincerely,
Bricks
